

As far as apis automation is concerned, I have worked testing apis with post for around 5 years, working in agile environments with ci/cd through gitlab, running tests in the pipelines linking them to qtest and jira through qtest.

The UI automation was mostly done with cypress, and webdrive.io, for around 5 years, with the same environments mentioned in API automation.

I have worked for more than 10 years in agile processes such as scrum and kanban, experience with version systems such as git, and task systems such as jira.

This job application was fully automated with cypress, you can check the code in the following git repository: <https://github.com/omar-rodsob/socialhub>
